- Assessment

Assessment against this standard must also:

 - be collected in a health or wellbeing setting; it cannot be assessed against in a simulated environment.
 - reflect information published on the Enabling Good Lives: A new approach to supporting disabled people website.
- Definitions

There are eight Enabling Good Lives Principles – self determination; beginning early; person-centred; ordinary life outcomes; mainstream first; mana enhancing, ease of use, relationship building.

Health or wellbeing setting may include but is not limited to the aged care, acute care, community support, disability, mental health, social services, whānau ora providers, and youth development sectors.

Ordinary life outcomes support disabled people to live an everyday life in everyday places; and to be regarded as citizens with opportunities for learning, employment, having a home and family, and social participation – like others at similar stages of life.

Organisational policies and procedures are the policies, procedures, and methodologies used in an organisation. They include legislative and regulatory requirements which may apply across an organisation, a specific site, or a workplace. Requirements are documented in organisational health and safety plans, contract work programmes, quality assurance programmes, policies, and procedural documents such as job descriptors and employment contracts.

Person-driven approach places the person being supported at the centre by encouraging participation and choice, and viewing them as an individual with unique qualities, abilities, interests, preferences and needs.

Personal plan is an individual or group plan developed for people receiving support. It may include their family and whānau.
